UMC Hires Director of Admissions

By Krista Lemos on Friday, September 2, 2005

The University of Minnesota, Crookston (UMC) recently announced the hiring of an admissions director. Rick Eber, who most recently served as director of admissions for Sheldon Jackson College in Sitka, Alaska, will be joining the admissions office October 3rd.

Eber earned Master of Arts degree from Lindenwood College, St. Charles, Missouri, in corporate communications and his bachelor of arts from Webster University, St. Louis, Missouri, with a degree in management and a minor in communications. He was a coach and instructor for St. Mary's High School in St. Louis before becoming account supervisor for Maritz, Incorporated. In 1996, he became the assistant director of admissions at the St. Louis College of Pharmacy, and later, served as head of admissions at Brescia University, Owensboro, Kentucky, Wayland Academy, Beaver Dam, Wisconsin, and Eureka College, Eureka, Illinois.

"I am very eager to join the UMC admissions team. I am looking forward to working with the faculty, staff and administration to bring the best students possible to UMC," Eber said. "My family and I are excited about being a part of the Crookston community as well."

Eber brings the ability to incorporate internal and external constituencies in his enrollment strategies and an interest in involving both board members and alumni strategically in the recruitment process. Pam Holsinger-Fuchs, vice chancellor for student affairs and enrollment stated, "I am excited for all of the energy and experience that Rick will bring to our already great admission team."

Prior to the hiring of a director, Mary Feller, served as the interim director of the admissions office. Prior to her appointment, Feller served as financial aid officer and scholarship coordinator.
